

PORTA SAN PIETRO

The south-east oriented district, locally known as "borgo bello" (beautiful borough), takes its name from its patron saint, St. Peter, and abounds in art and green areas. St. Peter is also the district's ensign, together with the crossed keys, that replaced the more ancient lion and stone in remembrance of the stone fights that were held on the Battlefield (today's Via XIV Settembre). Its representative colour is yellow, the colour of the wheat that used to come into the city through this gate.